Regular readers will recall that on 23rd February last season I ran odds on whether there would be a new Celtic manager. Many complained it was a betrayal of some sort, but I disagreed. I backed the last manager because I felt the board couldn't sack a successful manager but Celtic fans were openly talking about a replacement and since this is a fans site for fans I was reflecting what we, the Celtic fans, were discussing. When he did leave I fully back the arrival of Tony Mowbray. It is therefore with a very heavy heart that I bring you a Paddy

Despite his interview with Clyde this week discussing his lack of interest in returning to the goldfish bowl of Glasgow and the tedium of Scottish football where we play the same dross 4 times a season, Paul Lambert is favourite at 3/1. Some notable names then follow.

Paul Lambert	3/1	Brian Laws	28/1	Roberto Di Matteo	50/1
Mark Hughes	9/2	Glenn Hoddie	33/1	Dave Jones	50/1
John Hughes	15/2	Roberto Martinez	33/1	Craig Brown	66/1
Roy Keane	8/1	Mick McCarthy	33/1	Mark Mc Ghee	66/1
Alan Curbishley	10/1	Steve Coppell	33/1	Sven Eriksson	66/1
David Moyes	12/1	Simon Grayson	33/1	Steve McLaren	66/1
John Collins	12/1	Roy Hodgson	33/1	George Burley	66/1
Darren Ferguson	18/1	Owen Coyle	33/1	Gary Megson	80/1
Kenny Dalglish	20/1	Avram Grant	40/1	Frank Rijkaard	80/1
Steve Clarke	20/1	Tony Adams	40/1	Jürgen Klinsmann	80/1
Neil Lennon	20/1	Billy Davies	40/1	Steve Staunton	80/1
Slaven Bilic	20/1	Martin O'Neill	40/1	John Barnes	100/1
Dave Hay	25/1	Willie Mc Stay	40/1	Alex McLesh	100/1
Henrik Larsson	28/1	Roy Aitken	50/1
David O'Leary	28/1	Craig Levein	50/1

I dearly hope all of these are wrong. I still want to believe that Tony Mowbray can deliver the football that I know he desperately wants to. Unfortunately defeat in the Scottish Cup next week will end that. Even if we win the cup I can still see a mutual consent ending of our relationship.

If we win the cup and finish less than 7 points behind Rangers I would back Tony for next term, but if I can offer one piece of advice to Tony it is that nothing is impossible and despite printing the above odds, part of me still believes that at 8/1 we're worth a flutter.
